Leader's MESSAGE

Sister Marie Kathleen Daugherty, SCL
Associate Dean of Liberal Arts & Sciences

Alumni and Friends,

Greetings at the beginning of this Holy Season of Lent! While some may first think of Lent as a time of penance, I have always thought of it as springtime for the soul.

The word Lent comes from the word Lencten which means spring in Old English. It is a time to prepare the ground and sow the seeds for future harvest.

During this sacred time, we are united with all of God's People in fasting, almsgiving and prayer as our Lord prepares us to be fertile ground so that we can blossom into His service.

I have been part of the Donnelly family for 16 years, and have been privileged to work with our students as they have grown in greater understanding of themselves and of the transcendent destiny of the human person.

These students have been rooted in the principles of the dignity of the human person, an openness to truth, and a commitment to social justice, all of which are claimed by our Catholic identity.

We are, indeed, a family at Donnelly College. We are a strong family, with members throughout the world. Our alumni have gone on to serve in health care, education and other professions, armed with these values implanted within them at Donnelly College.

I encourage you to come to campus for one or more of our upcoming fun, free campus events, including the Arts in the Heart festivities, Money Smart Month presentations and the Multicultural Festival in April, as well as the Alumni Hall of Fame Induction Ceremony and 2011 Commencement in May.

Have a happy and holy Lent!

Sincerely,

Sister Marie Kathleen, SCL

RECENT events

▲ 18 STUDENTS RECOGNIZED AT DC'S FALL 2010 ESL GRADUATION & RECOGNITION CEREMONY

Friends and families, along with many Donnelly faculty and staff members, gathered together on Dec. 15, 2010, to celebrate the most recent class to complete their ESL coursework. Here we see ESL students Hae Jung Park, Puifai Lohitharn, Alla Skaskevych, Ana Lara, Medya Mohamed, and Trang Hoang proudly showing off their official English as a Second Language (ESL) completion certificates.

▲ DC APPOINTS INTERIM PROVOST & VP FOR ACADEMIC AFFAIRS

Robin E. Bowen, Ed.D., joins the Donnelly family as Interim Provost & Vice President for Academic Affairs. Bowen previously served as VP for Academic Affairs at Washburn University (2007-10), and Dean of the School of Graduate & Professional Studies at Rockhurst University (2002-07).

▲ STUDENTS TAKE ADVANTAGE OF LATE-NIGHT STUDYING DURING FINALS WEEK

Finals week is a time of both stress and excitement on campus, with comprehensive exams looming and the holidays just around the corner. Baccalaureate student Vesnel Francois took advantage of the late-night study hours offered on campus during finals week to prepare for his Anatomy & Physiology exam.

The next time you visit campus, take a look at Donnelly's front sign! You'll notice it has been updated to display the College's new logo. A big thanks to alumnus Phil Doherty, '62, for donating his time to paint the sign black.

13 students lead development of Student Senate

Donnelly is pleased to announce the creation of its first Student Senate. The first senate elections are scheduled for Monday, May 2, 2011, where the Donnelly student body will vote for students to represent them as president, vice president, treasurer and secretary throughout the 2011-12 academic year.

“The idea for Student Senate came about because the College’s student body has grown to the point where it is important for them to have a collective campus voice,” said Susan Keim, faculty member within Donnelly’s baccalaureate program and faculty advisor to the newly created senate. “A group of 13 student leaders were invited to an informational meeting, and all 13 came and are actively participating in the development of the program.”

These students were selected based on their student leadership and involvement at Donnelly. The group represents leaders from many different campus programs and student organizations.

Paulina Martinez-Chio, senior in the baccalaureate program, and Miro Heyink, Donnelly Student Ambassador and second-year, associate-degree seeking student, volunteered to serve as Student Senate co-chairs for the Spring 2011 semester leading up to the first elections.

“We are truly excited to be a part of this new wave of student leadership on campus,” said Heyink. “Our first task is to work with each campus organization and help them establish a unique mission statement and organizational structure. By doing this, future students will have a clearer understanding of the many student groups and organizations they can be a part of while they are in college.”

“I am eager to lead this new endeavor,” said Martinez-Chio. “The great thing about Donnelly is that it is a small enough campus where any student can be a leader if they have the desire to be one. After I graduate from Donnelly, it will be exciting to look back and see the mark I left by helping to launch this program.”

“Involving students in Donnelly’s campus leadership is very important,” said Keim. “By establishing the senate, students are given the opportunity to develop their leadership skills and have a collective voice in the governance and student life of Donnelly College. I’m excited to be a part of this new program, and to work more closely with our extraordinary student leaders.”

FOR THE LOVE OF CLAY

To alumnus Robert Briscoe, '67, art isn't just something you find in a museum or gallery.

"Art is everywhere, we just don't know how to recognize it," he said. "It is right in front of us every day – in the fountain pen you use, on the cover and within the book you're reading, in the billboard you see on the highway."

A native of Kansas City, Briscoe grew up just four blocks from Donnelly's original campus on 12th and Sandusky Avenue in Kansas City, Kan.

"Growing up, art wasn't in the schools," he said. "It wasn't a practical skill, so we were directed away from it. Today, I see the importance of art in life – art is life."

After high school, Briscoe wanted to go to Kansas State University to pursue a career in business and restaurant management but his grades weren't high enough.

"I made the decision to go to Donnelly for a year, but stayed for two because I enjoyed it so much."

After Donnelly, Briscoe went on to K-State and reached his goal of earning a degree, finishing with a bachelor's in economics.

Instead of continuing down that path, Briscoe boldly chose to follow another dream.

Today, he is one of the country's most renowned potters, and his pieces are known for their beauty, simplicity and functionality.

"I first discovered my interest in pottery when one of my Donnelly instructors brought in a group of students from the Art Institute to demonstrate different techniques in class."

This experience sparked his 40-year career, leading to acclaimed exhibits in museums and galleries across the country, from the Smithsonian and Philadelphia Museum of Art to the Crocker Art Museum in Sacramento, Calif., and Weisman Art Museum at the University of Minnesota.

"Handmade pottery has soul. It is a statement from one human being to another..."

His work has also appeared in countless art fairs and shows, including Kansas City's own Plaza Art Fair.

"Although my vases and pots are artistic statements from my hands, they are above all functional," he said. "They are typically oversized, implying generosity.

"My pieces are not frilly, fancy or pretentious – they are just quiet things you put food or flowers in."

On top of these characteristics, his work has one other key ingredient – soul.

"Industry can make pots and vases quickly and sell them at low prices but they are unsatisfying. Handmade pottery has soul. It is a statement from one human being to another – where feeling, emotion, and passion is transferred and shown.

"The idea that you can imagine something in your head and turn it into something real by using nothing more than a spinning wheel and hunk of amorphous clay never ceases to amaze me."

Although Briscoe's degree and career seem drastically different, he never questions the importance of earning his degree.

"When I first started out, I quickly realized that as an artist you have to wear all kinds of hats," he said. "You don't just get to be an artist all the time. You are a craftsman, welder, electrician, engineer, architect, chemist, etc. In the end, you're also a business man."

Donor Spotlight: DAN BRAUM, '71

Passionate. Believer. Relentless Advocate.

These are just a few of the words that only begin to describe DC alumnus Dan Braum. Since 2005, Dan has given both time and treasure to Donnelly and has served in a number of leadership and volunteer roles.

“Dan is a truly amazing volunteer,” said Emily Buckley, Director of Advancement. “He redefines the definition of dedication.”

Dan first came to Donnelly in 1966 to take a few classes while working at the nearby Ford Plant in Kansas City, Kan.

Like many Donnelly students today, he had to work a full-time job on top of a full college course schedule.

“I would work about 60 hours a week at Ford, but all in the evenings so I could attend classes,” Dan said.

While in a business class at Donnelly, Dan had an epiphany.

“All of a sudden, I discovered my passion,” he said. “The instructor was giving a lesson on marketing and a light bulb went off in my head. It was so interesting and I’ve never forgotten that moment.”

After earning his associate degree from DC, Dan went on to Kansas State University where he earned his bachelor’s degree in 1973, majoring in marketing and economics. From there, he went on to earn his MBA in 1975.

While he was at K-State, he was recruited and hired by Xerox where he worked for more than 30 years, retiring in 2006 after a successful career.

“After my wife passed away in 2005 and my retirement in 2006, I was looking for something to keep me busy,” Dan said. “So, I sat down and thought about what helped me achieve my successes in life. My wife and family, of course, were a big part of my success. Then it hit me – Donnelly.

“Donnelly gave me a foundation to build my success on. So, I started volunteering and I haven’t stopped since.”

In 2007, Dan was asked to serve as president of the College’s Alumni Board. He accepted and served three terms from 2007–10. He is now a member of the Board of Trustees, among many of his other volunteer duties.

“Dan is such a strong advocate for Donnelly,” said Buckley. “Yes, he has donated money, but most importantly he has donated his time and connected
